

A Backslider's Escape from Death.

WEDNESDAY February 12, 1823, Preached at Monk Wearmouth. 'The place would not contain much more than half the people. I then met the society, and several stopped who had never been at a class before. One man, who had been a backslider for many years, gave in his name. He had gone to sea only a few days before; but the vessel was obliged to be put back; and, at the same time, something occurred which caused him to leave the ship. The ship put to sea again and was lost, and all the crew were drowned. How unsearchable are the ways of God!

Thomas Nelson.
